Hi Brian,

It's been a while since we last met. I hope all is well with you. I read your article and felt obliged to clarify a few things from my vantage point. I was in attendance of the said meeting. As far as I can tell there was no ill intention there. I feel a public project with such magnitude needs a lot of input from the public. Attached is a letter with my perspectives about this issue. I hope it can help resolve some misunderstandings or hard feelings.

Best regards,
Benjamin

Hi Matt and Lynda,

I don't mean to put you on the spot but Brian was not at the meeting last Wed while the three of us were. I told Brian this afternoon what I saw happened at the meeting, but Brian said you two told him a different story. Can you please take a look at what I wrote and tell me which part of it is not true? I honestly did not see or hear anything that was "nasty". Perhaps you saw something I didn't see, if what Brian said is true? I'd appreciate it if you could clarify this for me. Thanks.

Regards,
Benjamin

I never talked with Brian Hews and I never said anything about the meeting being nasty. I told Jerry Bernstein that the meeting was a focus group of industry professionals and community leaders, when Jerry asked.

I was asked by Randy yesterday if the meeting was to organize a plan to derail the bond. I told him ABSOLUTELY No! I also told him it was a very peaceful meeting with great community input from professionals. I told him that at around noon yesterday and then his article came out later in the evening and said "the meeting was held to craft a strategy to defeat the Master Plan".

Dear Lynda and Matt,

Thank you both for the clarification. Now I know what we are dealing with, it's time to hit the Spam button. You know what I mean. Thank you again and God bless.

Best regards,
Benjamin
